

David T. Leamer
Director of Clinical Services

As the director of clinical services, David Leamer oversees the Center's multiple therapeutic programs for autistic individuals and families. He is responsible for ensuring that the Center's services adhere to the highest standards of care, and developing opportunities for the organization to serve more people affected by autism.

Prior to joining the Center, Leamer held the position of corporate director of educational services, school administrator and clinician for Progressions Companies, Inc. He currently serves as an adjunct faculty member for Reading Area Community College in Reading, Pa. Leamer holds a master's degree in counseling psychology from Immaculata University and a bachelor's degree in theology and counseling from Philadelphia Biblical University in Langhorne, Pa. He is a licensed professional counselor in Pennsylvania and a member of the Perkiomen Valley Academy board of directors. Leamer currently resides in Elverson, Pa. with his wife and four children.